Mary's Help Alcohol Theory Advances Involvement of Family

The child who comes to school wearing bedroom slippers, the wife who frequently cancels out at the last minute on bridge parties and the college student who finds an excuse for not spending Christmas at home all may have something in common: a family member who drinks too much.

Relatives of problem drinkers traditionally are told to "wait until he hits bottom."

Alcoholism counselors at Mary's Help Hospital in Daly City are shattering that theory with a new approach, begun in January, that exerts family pressure on alcoholics before the drinkers feel completely disgraced and worthless.

They have the numbers on their side, for every alcoholic is estimated to affect the lives of five or six other individuals.

Alcoholism is a more widespread problem than most people think. One out of every 10 drinkers has let the bottle control his life and is classified as an alcoholic. An equal number are problem drinkers.

But the friends and relatives of heavy drinkers don't have to watch helplessly as their loved ones destroy themselves. At free sessions held at Mary's Help, specially trained counselors from the hospital's Alcoholism CareUnit spell out techniques that can be used to motivate an alcoholic to help himself.

The CareUnit, which will celebrate its third anniversary March 15, is the only one of its kind in San Mateo County.

Program Coordinator Donald J. Frolli figures 60 percent of the 885 patients admitted to the CareUnit since it opened in 1976 have overcome the problem of alcoholism.

Although that success rate is unusually high for an alcoholism treatment program, the CareUnit team believes that involving family members will improve the rate.

One team member, social worker Jan Lawler, said it's difficult for some families to admit they have a problem drinker in their home.

Ironically, the result is that alcoholics often are the last to realize that they have a problem that is tearing their families apart.

She's heard many times about children who secretly pour the scotch and bourbon down the drain, for fear that daddy will "act funny" again.

One little boy wouldn't tell even his mother why he was so terrified about being driven to school by his father. It turned out that the man was sneaking belts out of a bottle in the garage each morning while warming up the car.

Alcoholic parents who send their children off to school in inappropriate clothes are able to postpone dealing with their drinking because of teachers and friends who wouldn't dare interfere.

And what incentive is there for a person to stop drinking when a spouse continually covers up for his strange behavior and missed appointments with little white lies?

"An alcoholic is never going to change as long as someone is rescuing him," Frolli said.

Families are the first to learn about the problem, but families don't do enough about it soon enough. They begin to feel guilty and share the blame. They feel they must be partly responsible for the problem.

'When a family starts doing something, there is a definite effect on the alcoholic'

He said the most successful recoveries he sees are those in which the alcoholic and his family have worked together.

At the hospital's free family intervention programs, CareUnit team members describe methods that spouses, friends and employers can use to make alcoholics do something about their excessive drinking.

Part of the training is teaching people that alcoholism is a disease and that the one alcoholic's outrageous behavior, embarrassing as it may be, isn't much different than another's.

Left untreated, the outcome is usually the same. All of the alcoholic's body organs will suffer and his life may be shortened by up to 15 years. Alcoholics who persist in drinking sometimes go insane and die violently.

To forestall this dire fate, persons concerned about heavy drinkers are encouraged to keep track of specific reasons why the alcoholic's problem is bothersome.

Despite Computerism, Dances Like Yesteryear

BY TERRY DAVENPORT
Post Staff Writer

My palms were dripping wet, my knees trembled and I was keenly aware of the new pimple that had sprouted on my face as I stepped into Westmoor High School's darkened cafeteria in Daly City last Friday night.

There, while my ears were assaulted by deafening noises and my eyes were dazzled by throbbing colored lights, I learned that high school dances haven't changed much since the last one I attended — 12 years ago.

But this dance had been influenced by modern technology. I was told it was the first computer dance in San Mateo County.

Along with 280 youngsters, I had answered 50 questions about myself and my ideal mate three weeks ago. Our answers had been fed into a computer run by an enterprising company in Massachusetts that specializes in computer dances.

We had been promised that each of us would be matched with at least six ideal partners on the night of the dance.

Since my immature face belies the astute, nearly 30-year-old brain behind it, I figured I could pass as a new kid on campus.

I was greeted at the door with the news that the computer had found me not six, but nine perfect companions, no doubt because of the winning way in which I had answered the questionnaire.

For example, I had said I would take any match five feet tall or more and anyone in the ninth grade or older. Under the additional counseling. After that, the person joins the alumnae group that meets for social and educational functions twice a month.

The CareUnit also checks up on its discharged patients by telephone.

There is no special charge for the program. CareUnit patients pay the same semi-private room rate that all Mary's Help patients pay. The usual three- to four-week stay costs $3,000 to $4,000.

Free help is available, too. Mary's Help invites problem drinkers and concerned families, friends and employers to call 992-1700 anytime, day or night, for free counseling.

The CareUnit's monthly programs on alcoholism also are free. The next one, on Feb. 26, will focus on the medical aspects of alcoholism. It will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the ground floor auditorium of the hospital.

In addition, family members and close associates of

ODCPA to Continue Challenge

The Original Daly City Protective Association still is contemplating a legal challenge of the way in which Daly City doled out $833,000 in federal funding.

Co-chairman Conrad Pavellas said Friday that his organization had several conferences this week with community leaders who may wish to join with ODCPA in questioning whether Daly City followed federal guidelines that govern the Housing and Community Development Act allocations.

He declined to state the names of those community leaders.

Pavellas warned the City Council during its HCDA hearing on Feb. 5 that his group might find it necessary to complain to the federal government about the city's failure to involve neighborhood groups in the funding process.

HCDA money is designed to foster community development in low- and middle-income areas.

When the council voted to give ODCPA $10,000, rather than the $20,000 requested, Pavellas attempted to refuse the money, saying sarcastically, "Thanks a lot. We work our heads off and we get a kick in the teeth." Other members of ODCPA at the meeting cautioned Pavellas that he had no right to turn down the money.

Pavellas said Friday, "If we do take legal action against the city, it would not take away any of the money that has been allocated. It might hold it up for several months but we're not supposed to get the money until July 1, anyway."

Jazzy Tux Job Pays Bills for This Jazz Sax Player

Kent Cohea of Daly City leads a double life.

Tuesday through Saturday nights he suits up in a tuxedo, puts on his best boyish smile and coaxes mellow pop tunes out of his saxophone to accompany a young female singer with apple-pie good looks at the San Francisco Hilton Inn.

On his nights off and during every other spare moment, you're likely to find him alone, wearing jeans, his hair tousled, and lost in the electric, discordant sounds he is blaring out of that same instrument.

Hotel tux jobs, he says, are the traditional way in which jazz musicians like himself support themselves as they struggle to preserve their music.

It isn't often that Cohea (pronounced "Coy") has a chance to play pure jazz for the masses, but he and his buddies will have that opportunity Thursday night.

The Kent Cohea Quartet is the featured group that night at Serramonte Shopping Center in Daly City as part of Art-Rise's continuing efforts to bring art to the public. The free concert begins at 7 p.m.

"I think it's incredible, bringing art to a shopping center. Shopping centers are becoming the center of the community," he says enthusiastically.

The lanky, bespectacled 38-year-old musician explains that he believes exposing the public to good jazz is half the battle.

"I think if a lot of people were educated about jazz, they would like it. Not all of it is guys beating on tin cans and squeaking through horns."

Part of the problem, Cohea believes, is that the Bay Area lags behind other parts of the country in its musical taste.

"Rock is still hanging on real strong in San Francisco. It took 10 years longer than most places for disco to catch on here. As for jazz, well, the Bay Area is retarded."

According to him, there's only one "really hardcore" jazz club in the vicinity: Keystone Korner in San Francisco. "They bring in New York talent and do a little bit of supporting local talent but not enough. There are lots of out-of-work jazz musicians here."

The image that most people have of jazz artists, he says, is as "bums and dopers who play in dingy, smoky bordello types of places run by owners who sell hot television sets."

Cohea formed his own healthy opinion of jazz back in his hometown of Cedar Rapids, Iowa. "I was fortunate. In my town of 95,000 was a jazz club. A lot of people came through there that later made it."

As a child he remembers his parents continually playing big band music on the radio and record player. He got his first saxophone when he was nine years old.

"I always thought my mother got me a sax because she liked Jimmy Dorsey," he chuckles.

As a teen-ager, Cohea felt the tug of rock and roll. He was nearly seduced by the sound of Bill Haley and the Comets when he saw what he terms "the first juvenile delinquent movie" — "The Blackboard Jungle."

But the group of older guys that he hung around with steered him back to the sounds of Dave Brubeck and Benny Goodman. Cohea hasn't deserted jazz since.

After living in Los Angeles, Chicago and Boston, he arrived in the Bay Area seven years ago, thinking it would be the ideal artistic womb.

He was dismayed to find other jazz musicians fleeing to the east coast and even across the Atlantic. In Europe, he says, "Jazz musicians are treated like kings. Here you're treated like bums."

Cohea was further disappointed to see black and white jazz artists congregating in different clubs and hanging around in racial cliques. He fears many more talented jazz players are forsaking the art because they realize it's not profitable.

To fight back, he and other jazz musicians in the area formed Bay Area Loft Jazz, a collective dedicated to giving lesser known jazz artists exposure. Musicians perform at Loft Jazz's headquarters at 115 Main St., San Francisco.

The group has been the primary showcase for his original jazz compositions.

Lately, Cohea has noticed jazz returning to the public eye through another musical medium: disco.

Although he welcomes this "middle of the road" jazz as another opportunity for the public to learn about his favorite type of music, Cohea believes strongly that jazz suffers from commercialization.

"You sell your art and it turns into a bag of garbage," he declares. "The artist who expects to make a living by his art has a tremendous problem — the struggle of surviving and keeping the art form. It's like the writer writing a great novel and supporting himself with TV scripts."

Cohea argues that musicians like Beethoven and Bach never could have written great music on their own. "They were subsidized by the state, which was royalty at the time."

Since kings and queens are hard to come by these days, Cohea and other musicians have to compromise their artistic ideals slightly to support their art.

Unbeknownst to them, the patrons of today's underground music are prosperous executives and matrons like the ones who crowd the Hilton's cocktail lounge to see Cohea's alter ego.

Little do they know that the handsome young sax player in the bow tie and tails is living the life of Walter Mitty.

Teachers Say Pay Hike Legal

Teachers and other employees in the Jefferson Union High School District can look forward to back pay and bigger paychecks, according to Marcy Dunne Ballard, president of Local 1481 of the American Federation of Teachers.

Her view was much more optimistic that the initial reactions of district officials last week.

After studying the 36-page decision on public employees' wages the state Supreme Court handed down last Thursday, Mrs. Ballard said Monday she and the union's attorneys believe the ruling removes obstacles that previously blocked payment of a 7-1/2 percent salary increase to JUHSD employees.

That wage hike, retroactive to Feb. 1, 1978, was part of the settlement following a bitter 15-day strike by the district's teachers.

A state law forbidding payment of raises to public employees forced the district to stash the money in an interest-bearing account instead of paying it out.

Mrs. Ballard said the portions of the law preventing raises were deemed unconstitutional by the state Supreme Court and, therefore, JUHSD employees are entitled to the money right away.

She explained that the unanimous court decision severed from the law the same two sections that were widely quoted as reasons for not

Panel Sets Water Use Changes

Sewer charges should be based on two months of winter water use, a citizens advisory committee to the North San Mateo County Sanitation District Board of Directors decided Thursday.

Although no formal vote was taken, the consensus of the group is that charges should be calculated by figuring January and February water use, multiplying that figure by six to get a figure for the whole year's water use, then multiplying that sum by the current sewer rate. The present sewer rate is 59 cents per 100 cubic feet.

The new procedure would differ little from the present method of calculating sewer rates, which bases

It seems difficult to believe but it is already time for the women of the Mary's Help Hospital Guild to begin work on the 1979 version of the Boutique de Noel!

Tomorrow, the first workshop for this year's big fund-raiser will be held in the hospital. All women who enjoy being "Santa's helpers" are urged to attend. For additional information contact Mrs. Sarah Kelechava.

Later this week Mrs. Kelechava and Mrs. Jane Hillman and the hospital's director of volunteers, Mrs. Mary McCoy, will be representing the guild and the hospital at the annual meeting of the California Hospital Association.

Saturday, members of the Beta Sigma Chapter of the Epsilon Sigma Alpha will gather to enjoy "Shower of Fashions," the annual fashion show and dessert sponsored by the chapter.

Mrs. Kay Kuckaby and Mrs. Vivian Burg are co-chairing the show, which is staged as a benefit for the California League for the Handicapped.

Tickets are available for next Tuesday's annual dinner meeting of the local chapter of Friends Outside.

Mrs. Louise Enberg of South San Francisco is the director of the unit, which serves the families of men and women who are in prison.

Tickets, costing $6 each are available from the Friends Outside office, 136 Church St. in San Francisco. Proceeds from the dinner are used for youth and children's programs.

Dance

physical attractiveness category. I checked "not important."

I told the computer my favorite pastimes are "movies" and "riding around," that I hate sports and think money is "useful."

I couldn't resist lying and saying that my favorite music is "punk rock."

My mission at the dance was to locate my nine ideal companions. Easier said than done.

Clutching a card bearing the numbers of those unsuspecting males, I pinned on my own number (70) and timidly entered the cafeteria.

As soon as I heard the blaring whine and thunderous beat of a disco record, my ears began begging to go home. I gladly would have followed.

It was just like "the good old days." I felt awkward, shy, nervous and I was sure I'd worn the wrong thing. There I was in what I thought was the current fashion rage among female adolescents — a "big blouse," pleated pants and clunky sandals — and most of them were wearing slinky dresses and spindly high heels.

But my panic subsided when I heard one svelte young beauty with a Farrah Fawcett mane whisper to her girlfriend, "I'm scared." At least I wasn't alone.

As the evening wore on, I learned that many of the students were too frightened to wear their numbers. Although it gave them a chance to be picked, it also was an opportunity to be rejected.

Being happily married, I figured the stakes were slightly lower for me.

I didn't have much luck with my first prey: number 98, a medium-sized young man with frizzy hair. He was about to run in the opposite direction when he saw me coming.

"Hi! I think I have your number," I said.

"What?" The loud music made conversation nearly impossible.

"I said, I THINK I HAVE YOUR NUMBER."

Glen Archibald didn't talk long. He was more interested in getting back to his buddies, who seemed to be discussing in great detail the availability of a sweet young thing in a blue ruffled dress.

My next catch, number 32, Don Lavigne, made me wonder about the computer's matchmaking ability. Just about the only thing the 16-year-old sophomore and I seemed to have in common was the fact that we had both said we loved punk rock.

The tom-tom beat of the music became more insistent and more couples swung onto the dance floor as the amplifiers boomed out what clearly was a favorite song: "September" by Earth, Wind and Fire.

"C'mon, everybody, let's DANCE!" Todd Silva, the senior acting as deejay, screamed into his microphone.

He was going to keep our record collection up to date.

He was nodding in time to the music with his eyes closed. Dancers quickly picked up the rhythm. A revolving mirror ball washed a sea of color dots over their flailing legs, arms and shoulders.

Only one couple tried the fancy, disciplined twirls and dips of hardcore disco. The others were dancing pretty much the way we'd danced back in the Sixties at Redlands High School in Southern California — only they danced better.

The focus of attention was a girl in a sequined dress who began losing her spaghetti straps. Her partner had two thirds of the buttons on his shirt undone, exposing a sparse forest of chest hairs.

The mood changed abruptly with the start of a slow tune. Couples immediately draped their chins over one another's shoulders, clung tightly and shuffled back and forth in a two-step.

I noticed with amusement how one girl who had danced two fast tunes with the same boy made a swift exit as the tempo of the music slowed down.

The friends she joined had been tapping their toes and giving guys the eye — subtle indications that they'd like to dance. But now all three decided to avoid the awkward possibility of being asked to dance a slow number by strutting off to the ladies' room — a move that I myself often made back in high school.

A group of four males watched with interest as they left. One boy nudged another, whispered something and they both laughed. The evening was half over and not one of them had asked a girl to dance. We had that type back at Redlands High, too.

All this action escaped 17-year-old Paul Grosshans. With his hands in his pockets, he was squinting in fascination at the blinking lights on the large black box in front of Todd, the deejay.

Paul explained that he already had built the school's radio station equipment when he attended a disco dance last April put on by an outside company.

"The music was just terrible," he said. "They kept having equipment failures and I ended up fixing their stuff."

So Paul decided to design his own disco sound system for the school. Students at the dance agreed that the music booming out of the amplifiers was as good as any you'd find at a real disco.

"Paul's a brain. He builds TVs, everything," Todd said with admiration. Along with another senior — Kurt Larcher — Todd and Paul had spent the last two weeks perfecting the sound system, renting special lights and connecting the lights so they pulsed in time to the music. They spent two days buying disco records.

"We're going to keep our record collection up to date."

Without hesitating, he said, "Wanna dance?"

I was thrilled. I had finally been accepted.

On my way out, another student insisted that we were meant for each other since his number was only one digit away from mine.

Then he spotted the notebook under my arm and asked, "Do you always take notes at dances?"

"Yes," I replied with a smile. "I want to remember the best times of my life forever."

Citizens reports that the next outing by that group will be to San Francisco's Chinatown. Members interested should make reservations now for the March junket.

Father Efreem Trettle, O.F., will be the guest speaker when the members of the Loyola Guild meet March 2.

Father Trettle known for his television Mass for shut-ins and members will may visit with him during the tea after the regular meeting.

Mrs. Robert Simpson is seeking donations for the annual rummage sale, to be sponsored by the guild on March 7 in the Hall of Flowers in San Francisco. New and used items are needed for the vent which is held to raise money for scholarships to be used by students at the University of San Francisco or the St. Ignatius Preparatory School.

While members of the Loyola Guild are working to raise funds for high school and college-age students, members of the Westlake Catholic Women are raising funds for the Our Lady of Mercy parish school.

The "OLM Treasure Hunt," featuring a variety of rummage and new items, will be staged in the parish hall March 2 and 3.

Mrs. Sheldon Lendall, Mrs. Noel Bragg and Wayne Watson, who are sharing the job of chairing the event, are seeking donations for the sale. Items may be left in the Our Lady of Mercy Parish hall or persons wishing to donate heavy items may arrange for pick up by contacting Mrs. Lendall.

Plants, arts and crafts will be featured in the Daly City Garden Club's booth at the Serramonte Spring Community Bazaar on the Serramonte Mall March 10 and 11.

The club plans to donate proceeds from the booth to the Penny Pines Plantation to buy one acre of eroded U.S. Forest land in California. Pines will be planted on the acre to prevent further erosion and to reforest the area.

Jim Scott, chairman of the annual Festival of Our Lady of Perpetual Help Parish, reports that supporters of this year's festival will be eligible to win $1,000 cash, a $500 colored television set or $100 in cash.

alcoholics are invited to enroll in the free family intervention sessions.

In the end, it's the alcoholic that must decide for himself to quit drinking. But the CareUnit team has found that alcoholics overcome their problem sooner and with longer lasting success when people around them motivate them.

"If enough people who are concerned about the person get involved, they have an effect on the alcoholic. He will respond," Froli said.

Froli speaks from experience. Like three other staff members in the CareUnit, he once was an alcoholic himself.

What made him stop? "Well," he said, "I lost a few jobs, I began to get scared, the kids started noticing. But I kept drinking until someone stopped telling me not to drink so much and told me how to get some help."

the charge on four months of winter water usage.

Citizens protested loudly when they discovered the district had charged them at an 88-cent rate in the confusion that resulted when winter water usage records were erased from Daly City's computer.

The district's directors have ordered the staff to refund to all of the 22,000 sewer users who were overcharged a total of $400,000. The processing of refunds could cost an additional $100,000.

The problem began when the district changed its billing system from a flat charge on water bills to a fee based on water usage posted on property tax bills.

But the majority of committee members dismissed the idea of resurrecting a flat sewer charge as discriminatory against apartment dwellers and homeowners who limit the use of their water.

They agreed that the new billing system should be as fair and as easy to administer as possible. They also intend to recommend that records of water billings be saved for future reference.

The committee is expected to make its recommendation to the directors Feb. 26 at 1 p.m. at 153 Lake Merced Blvd., Daly City.

Pay

paying the wage hike to JHSD employees

Until now, the state flatly refused to dole out state surplus money to jurisdictions that ignored the law and gave their employees raises. The Jefferson Union High School District promptly stopped processing raises for employees last fall when it was threatened with losing $7 million in state aid.

Mrs. Ballard sees no reason why the district can't resume the processing of the raises and back pay.

"We feel very, very fortunate that the decision went in our favor," she said.

District officials were not available to comment on their reactions to the decision.

Friday, Associate Superintendent Ernest Ribera and Board Chairman James Roman said their initial reactions were that the decision would not be sufficient to allow the district to unfreeze the wages set aside for the 7-1/2 percent pay hike.

THE DIET CORNER

By ELISE GENDAR

Come February, hearts are trumps. We all think hearts, real hearts, human hearts during this month, thanks to the National Heart Association. It would be easy to add in more statistics in this column and remind you all of the health aspects of diet and the dire things that overweight does to the human heart. But you've heard all that, and more, during the last few days. As for me, I prefer the romantic view of diet and hearts.

When you love someone what you want most of all in life is to please and be pleasing to your loved one. Now there are a few who are turned on by the Rubens-type form. But I'd hazard a guess that it's a real minority. Most of us come equipped to appreciate the shapely, and that means slim.

What I'm saying is that dieting to be slim and attractive is as noble an end as dieting to save your life. Your diet can make you more pleasing to the people who love you. After all, they have to look at you every day.

Wouldn't it be nice to make his heart beat faster because you look super? Understand, I'm all for Women's Lib, but I don't want to be libbed from being the source of admiration.

Think of your diet as a way to put a little romance back into your life. You'll be a new you, full of pep and energy, looking your best, and ready to go. Now that's quite a valentine to give anyone.

As for your own personal Valentine to yourself, concoct a luscious mold for dinner tonight.

CRANBERRY GELATIN SALAD

- 2 cans diet black cherry soda
- 2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
- 2 cups cranberries, raw
- 1 cup crushed pineapple, drained
- 1 cup celery, finely chopped
- 10 packets artificial sweetener

Wash cranberries and place 1½ cups in a saucepan with 1 can of black cherry soda. Boil until skins split. In a bowl, sprinkle ½ can of soda over gelatin to soften. Pour hot cranberry mixture over it and stir until gelatin dissolves. Add sweetener. Place remaining soda and ½-cup cranberries in blender. Chop fine. Add to cranberry gelatin mixture with celery and pineapple. Chill until firm.

How to handle a box of valentine candy? Don't undress it.

Say a pretty thank you. Plead a too-full-now-to-eat attack. And when no one's looking, get it out of the house. If you can't see it safely to a nursing home, hand it to your scavenger men. If they're not on diets, they'll appreciate the thought. If they are, they know where to dispose of it quickly and conveniently.

HAPPY VALENTINE'S DAY

Volunteer workers at Villa Sanitarium in Daly City had a party for the patients last Wednesday, with donated funds and cooperation of the sanitarium

The Gamesman

A 'Friend' in Board Games

By RICHARD C. MOON

Looking for a bargain in games? Perhaps a good place to start is in the area of licensed games. A licensed game is one that features popular characters from the cartoon world, television, literature or movies.

You have probably seen many games on the shelves of department and games stores which bear the names of popular characters. Parker Brothers' Six Million Dollar Man, Hardy Boys, Curious George, and Muppet Show Game are among some of the most popular.

There is no doubt that children are likely to approach a game with great enthusiasm if they associate it with a character they have enjoyed reading about or watching TV. But what is the advantage to you, the consumer in choosing a game featuring licensed characters over another product? The answer is often in a very important area — the pocketbook.

Games using licensed characters frequently are less expensive than those that do not. The reason is obvious. The games do not have to be advertised heavily and advertising is expensive. Some publishers have been known to spend literally millions of dollars in the promotion of a single game and, naturally, the cost of this advertising is passed in part on to the consumer.

The publishers of licensed games have realized that they can save their customers money by using recognizable characters in many of their games and this practice has proved very successful.

According to "Toys," a national trade magazine serving the toy and game industry, last year over 50 percent of pre-school board game dollar sales resulted from the use of licensed characters. It is not hard to understand why.

When a parent decides to buy a game for a child, he can be overwhelmed by the available choice and often will end up buying on impulse.

The parent sees a friendly face from television or the pages of a well-remembered book smiling down from the shelf and the game has immediate appeal. So the use of licensed characters in the creation of game amounts to a piece of marketing genius.

As I have mentioned,

Parker Brothers is one of the companies that has made good use of licensing. Not only does the company produce inexpensive games, it also markets some of the best.

The Mickey Mouse Game is a fine example, particularly since this year marks Mickey's 50th birthday. Your child is sure to be pleased about seeing an old "friend" on the game board. The game is ideal for children of ages five to nine.

Nell Norton

Good morning, good cooks.

Breakfast is a forgotten meal for millions of Americans. Relying only on coffee or nothing at all, we get off to a poor start in the morning.

But, like most of us, you know these facts. It is changing our families' breakfast habits that is so difficult. Perhaps a gradual change is the best approach for those who are "turned off" by food in the morning, or simply "don't have the time." Start with a small but nourishing breakfast to get the family going in the morning.

Juice or fruit is a must as it is the best chance to fulfill your vitamin C requirements for the day. Have a full juice pitcher ever ready for those who are on the run in the morning.

To tempt your family into the breakfast habit, make a batch of homemade muffins. For starters, these tasty bran-raisin muffins are hard to resist. Made with whole bran cereal and raisins, they provide important vitamins and minerals. Served with juice and a glass of milk you have a fairly nutritious breakfast.

This particular muffin, made with corn oil margarine, has an added bonus; it is low in cholesterol and saturated fat. Be sure to serve a polyunsaturated margarine at the table, instead of butter, to further reduce the family's cholesterol intake.

If time is very short in the morning you can take your breakfast with you. Wrap a muffin or two in plastic wrap and enjoy at the office with coffee and milk. Even a light breakfast such as this will give you quick energy to start the day.

Break the no-breakfast habit in your house with delicious bran-raisin muffins.

BRAN-RAISIN MUFFINS

- 1/3 cup corn oil margarine
- 1/2 cup firmly packed dark brown sugar
- 1 egg white
- 1 cup unsifted flour
- 1 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 cup dark seedless raisins
- 2 cups whole bran cereal
- 1 cup skim milk

In large mixing bowl, cream together 1/3 cup corn oil margarine and 1/2 cup brown sugar. Beat in 1 egg white. Sift 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1/2 teaspoon baking soda together. Mix in 1 cup raisins and 2 cups bran cereal. Stir alternately with 1 cup milk into creamed mixture just until dry ingredients are moistened. Divide mixture evenly among 12 greased muffin pans, 2 3/4-by-1 1/4 inches.

Bake at 400 degrees for about 20 minutes, or until done. Makes 12 muffins.

Four Westmoor High School students have been selected to compete in Bank of America's 1979 Achievement Awards program.

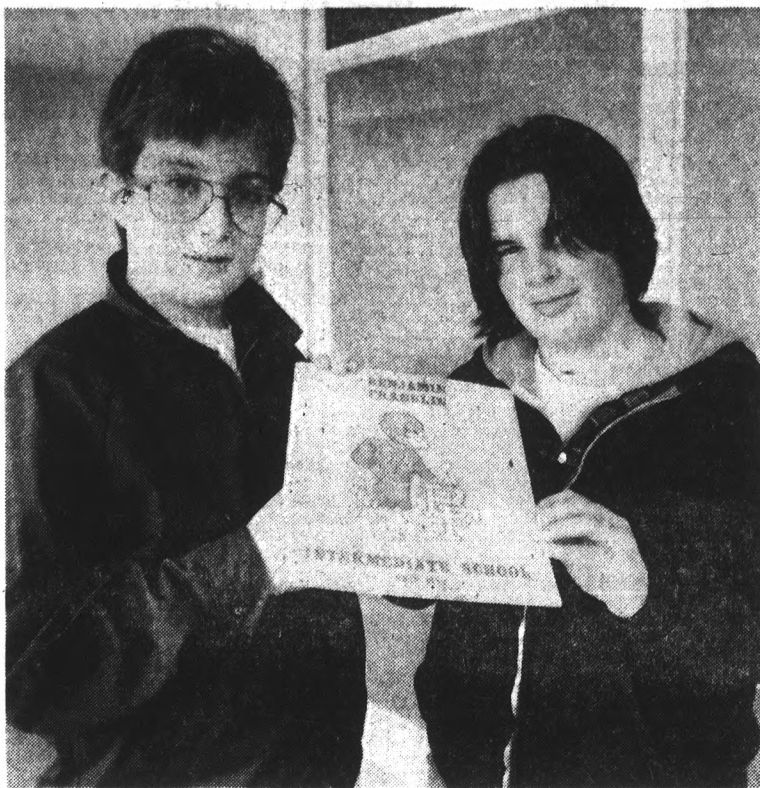

These top-ranking students and their study fields are: JoAnn McGowan, science and mathematics; Kenneth Ikeda, liberal arts; Beatrice Freiberg, fine arts; and Brian Oxenham, vocational arts.

In addition, 10 other seniors received certificates of merit for superior performance in specific study fields. They are: Science, Marisa Matteucci; math, Martin Lee; social studies, Michele Mercier; foreign languages, Jaime Guzman; art, Michael Madrid; drama, Marcia Kludjian; band (music), Maurice Lowe; business, Elizabeth Mahanoy; industrial arts, John Keating; and home-making, Michele York.

The top-ranking seniors, who each receive an engraved plaque, will compete March 28 with students from neighboring high schools. Judging at this zone event will be by a panel of educators and business and community leaders, and will be based on written compositions, group discussions, scholarship and civic and school activities.

First-place winners in this event then advance to the regional finals. Second- and third-place zone winners in each field receive $100 and $75, respectively.

In the finals, zone winners will compete for top prizes of $2,000, $1,000 and $750. All other finalists receive $500.

BIG DAY AT BEN

The Benjamin Franklin School PTA is celebrating the 26th year of the Benjamin Franklin Intermediate School and the 21st birthday of the Ben PTA. The theme is "Link the Past to the Present" and a concerted effort is being made to find the missing links. A number of employees in the Jefferson School District once were students at Ben Franklin. Many PTA presidents of Ben are still members of the Daly City/Colma community and are encouraged to come and celebrate. Honorary Service Award recipients and friends of Ben may join present PTA members as they put the links in the chain of events Feb. 22, at 7:30 p.m. in the Ben Franklin multi-use room. Reservations may be made by calling the school, 992-1000, ext. 303. Helping to promote the observance are Paul Koffa, left, and Marty Schultz, right, seventh graders at Ben Franklin.

Sierra Club Slates Offshore Oil Study

Potential impacts of offshore drilling on Northern California's coastal communities and their relationship to local coastal planning will be the subject of a public workshop Feb. 24 at the College of San Mateo Student Center mezzanine, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Oil Lease Sale 53 being conducted by the Department of Interior. This lease sale includes the coast off San Mateo County's shores. Lyon will be joined by representatives of the Interior Department's Bureau of Land Management and the State Coastal Commission.

Commission spokesperson. The workshop will be conducted by Al Haynes of the Northern California Coastal Trust and will be co-sponsored by the Committee for Green Foothills and the Sierra Club. The program also includes a panel on planning for the San Mateo County Coastline, a sensitive coastal resource area which still remains relatively undeveloped. The Local Coastal Program will outline future development along that coast. Additional speakers include Don Craig of the county's Planning Department and Debbie Nelson of the county's Coastal Energy Impact Program. The latter program is a study of various problems which the county might face if offshore drilling occurs along its coast.

RECIPE FOR SAVINGS:

Lucky has it!

KEY BUYS

Key Buys, like the ones we list below with the symbol , represent either an exceptional purchase of a manufacturer's temporary promotional allowance. Either way, they highlight a price lower than the regular discount price. Look for them ... they mean additional savings to you!

DISCOUNT PRICES

Lucky originated True Discount Pricing and has offered, and continues to offer, low everyday prices without a corresponding sacrifice in quality or selection ... including all your favorite national brands. That's why we claim reducing your weekly food costs is our business!

VALU-FINDER

When you shop Lucky, pick up a copy of the Valu-Finder. It's a listing of additional Key Buys and new items currently available. We don't have enough space in our regular newspaper ads to list them all, so we publish a weekly listing called Valu-Finder to assist you in your shopping!

SINGLE ITEM PRICING

Lucky has one price for each item ... instead of offering multiple pricing (such as 3 for 89¢) which requires mental arithmetic if you only want one. One price per item means less confusion for both the customer and checker ... you always know the cost of each item ... we think that's a sensible way to price products.

Dinner Menu for Gourmets on Budget

ROSEBUD'S ENGLISH PUB, in the heart of San Francisco's Geary Street "Theater Row," is a discovery for gourmets on a budget. The select dinner menu features superb entrees such as Crisp Duckling with Braised Peaches and Breast of Chicken Tiffany priced from $6.95 including soup or salad, potatoes and fresh vegetables. DEAN LEHR will launch an exciting "King Tut" dance contest next Wednesday eve at LEHR'S CABARET DISCO in San Francisco. Come in Egyptian costume and your admission is free. Contestants will create an original "King Tut" dance. Weekly winners will be judged by an applause meter and finalists will compete in the big dance-off on June 6 for a trip for two to Cairo, Egypt. A new place to enjoy lunch, dinner, or entertain a group of friends has made its appearance on the Peninsula with the opening of the Brass Elephant, in the new GROSVENOR AIRPORT INN, South San Francisco. The big Union Jack on the aerial sign gives a clue to the atmosphere of old Colonial India, which sets the tone for this truly unique restaurant. A full menu is offered, along with an outstanding Salad Table, which is "a meal in itself." Sunday night at JIM SNIADACK'S SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S restaurant is jam session time, when musicians and vocalists are invited to join the group. Anyone who sits in on the session, which starts at 9 p.m., receives a complimentary introduction cocktail.

Lagoonside Dinery Preems on Peninsula

Soon to come to the Peninsula is LA BELLA PASTA, bringing to local area fanciers of gourmet Italian food the same fine selections and quality that have made La Contadina in San Francisco's North Beach a favorite dining place of leading political and celebrity figures. Owner SALVATORE FAVA of La Contadina fame is now putting the final touches to his new restaurant fronting on the lagoon at Edgewater Place Shopping Center in Foster City. Grand Opening festivities are expected about mid-March. Those two candles atop the mantle above the stone fireplace in the dining room of L'AUBERGE in Redwood City symbolize the continuous prestige of this mellow French country inn restaurant and cocktail retreat, where so many discriminating patrons return time after time. The whimsical picture drawings on the exterior of the landmark building at Broadway and El Camino in Burlingame give a clue to the lighthearted spirit that prevails on the inside at BEARDSLEY'S. The pianobar strains of BOBBIE STAHL add to the happy atmosphere. There's a wealth of family tradition and pride in the complex of three outstanding restaurants, NICK'S, THE MOONRAKER, and CAPTAIN CHARLES, and the SEABREEZE MOTEL (with new construction also going on) operated by the GUST family at Rockaway Beach, Pacifica.

Mexican Cuisine Attracts Celebs

CHRIS VLASSIS, owner of LA PINATA Mexican restaurant, says he's looking forward to Patricia Hearst's return from vacation. Seems his downtown Burlingame restaurant is regarded as one of her favorite dining spots. There are some real fun things, as well as fun people, in JOHN & KATHY'S PUB in South San Francisco. In the dining room there's a glass showcase full of all the old-time collectables you can imagine. In the entrance hall to the adjoining cocktail lounge sits a beautiful old barber chair, where Bartender TIL reposes now and again. Just because ENRICO ROMANO is a swingin' Italian and his compact little bistro-restaurant in Rockaway Beach, Pacifica, is called ROMANO'S Italian restaurant, don't get the idea that all he serves is spaghetti, ravioli, pasta, and such. Not so! Just drop by any day after 4 p.m. and see the surprises handsome "Rico" has for you. Would you believe a couple dozen seafood dishes, including Abalone Dore Supreme, plus steaks and other meats? After doing your shopping in the Bayhill Shopping Center, San Bruno (just off Highway 280), treat yourself to lunch or a libation at the BAYHILL LOUNGE. Wood paneled walls, hand-rubbed wood bar and dining tables create an easy, comfortable feeling throughout the interior. You can also enjoy live music and dancing to INDEED Thursdays through Saturdays from 9 p.m.

Elaborate Dessert Has Sweet Appeal

Desserts at SERRAMONTE JOE'S in South San Francisco may be as simple as sherbet or as elaborate as the chef's special - Chocolate Mousse, which is prepared from scratch. Giants baseball star Willie McCovey had heads swiveling at PHIL LEHR'S Pay-By-Ounce Steakery, on the lower level of the San Francisco Hilton Tower, the other night when he stopped by for dinner with a gorgeous former Playboy bunny. "Big Mac" told Phil he was there to start his "spring training" - by eating a huge, 2 1/2-pound porterhouse steak. Some of the Bay Area's best country music is being heard Fridays and Saturdays at the KING'S TABLE in Redwood City when sensational singing guitarist REX BARNETT takes the spotlight. When recording executive Hewlett Crist sits in for a few sets, they're one of the finest country music duos around today. When JOHN CHIANG, owner of GONG'S Chinese restaurant in South San Francisco, says he tries to think of all the ways to carry out his slogan, "Less frills and more taste," he's also talking about extra services as well as varieties of Cantonese and Mandarin cuisine. In the lower corner of the menu is a note which says some items can be ordered in smaller size at 2/3 price, which means you can pick out just what and how much you want.

Wallace Directs Entertainment Flow

CARROLL WALLACE, master of ceremonies at world famed FINOCCHIO'S, has been orchestrating shows in that capacity for many years. Gifted with a quick wit and an even quicker tongue, Carroll is always prepared with the right response at the right time. He carefully directs the flow of entertainment, which includes singers, dancers, comedienne and, of course, the versatile musicians, in four nightly shows, except Mondays and Thursdays. How far would you go for some real home made German potato and leek soup made from an old-country recipe? All you have to do is seek out TILLIE'S LIL FRANKFURT, an authentic German and continental restaurant in Moss Beach. If you could see the big cockpit of meat being boiled for soupstock and the freshly peeled potatoes and crisp green and white leeks to be added, you'd waste no time pulling up a chair. With the crab sssson in full swing, that steaming crab pot in front of VINCE'S Fresh Seafood Depot, next door to VINCE'S Italian and Seafood restaurant in San Mateo, is going full time, turning out tasty morsels for take-home and to be enjoyed at the restaurant. The LICATA family continues to see that the tradition of quality and service is upheld throughout.

Bonus bargains are bigger and better than ever at BARNEY'S club and the SOUTH TAHOE NUGGET in South Lake Tahoe, with the new "Nevada Fun Coupons" now available at all the stop-off spots from Vallejo onward, via Highways 80 and 50. The free coupons now have double value with a matching lineup of coupons for each casino. Remember the days when music was made by a creaking Edison phonograph or blaring nickelodeon? Well, those good old days are back on the second floor mezzanine of HAROLDS CLUB'S new expansion, which opened Feb. 15. The oak-railed balcony, overlooking main floor gaming, is filled with historical antiques, artifacts and memorabilia of the turn of the century. JOHN DAVIDSON will present everything from a medley of current hits to an impromptu operatic number when he opens a two-week engagement in the Headliner Room Feb. 22 at HARRAH'S RENO. ROGER MILLER and KAY STARR entertain through Wednesday.

Jeff Nips Rams in NPL Thriller

By MIKE FICHER

Jefferson High's Robert Jefferson scored only two points in Friday night's North Peninsula League basketball playoff championship game between the Indians and Westmoor High.

But the 6-0 senior's sole scoring contribution will not be soon forgotten by either club — or the disbelieving near-capacity crowd at Skyline College.

Jefferson stole an inbound pass with five seconds remaining in the game and streaked the length of the court for an uncontested layup as time ran out to lift Jeff to an incredible 62-61 win over the shocked Rams.

The dramatic victory earned the Indians an outright NPL basketball title and a berth against West Catholic Athletic League titlist St. Francis in the Central Coast Section playoffs, which begin Thursday night at Kezar Pavilion in San Francisco.

"I was just waiting for them to go out, and hoped they'd throw the ball at me. He did it and I looked up at the clock and saw :04 left, and I knew I'd make it," a smiling, soft-spoken Jefferson said in the noisy Indian locker room.

"I felt something was going to happen that was going to enable us to win," guard Richard Rodgers said. "I was thinking before the game about what Ram forward (Derrick) Johnson said about knowing when his team is going to win or lose. I just had a feeling somehow we were going to pull it out."

"Then I looked up and saw Boo Boo (Robert Jefferson) running down the court with the ball and I froze. I thought, 'Please don't miss!'"

"Boo Boo is an unselfish player," forward Bob Oller noted. "He might not score a lot of points, but he makes a lot of steals — like in the Half Moon Bay game, when he had ten. He was the right guy to take it, and I was really glad to see him be the hero."

Jefferson's unbelievable play capped a dramatic comeback by the never-say-die Indians.

Jeff trailed 59-51 with 3:40 left in the game when Westmoor employed a stall offense. But a couple of turnovers and missed shots resulted in scoring opportunities for the Indians.

NPL Player of the Year Darryl Jackson slam-dunked a rebound to move Jeff within six points. Ernie Dupree, the hero in Jeff's playoff win over Oceana on Tuesday, canned a jump shot with 3:00 left to make it 59-55.

Jackson then made a steal and hit the breaking Oller with a pinpoint pass for a layup on which the Indian cager was fouled. The subsequent free throw closed the gap to 59-58.

After the Rams missed a one-and-one chance at the free throw line, Jackson made what appeared to be the go-ahead basket. However, the field goal at 1:24 was disallowed because of an offensive foul.

Westmoor held the ball again and Jeff resorted to fouling. However, Tony Limutau, with characteristic cool, swished two free throws with 0:33 remaining to stretch the lead to 61-58.

After Jeff missed two follow shots with 0:15 left and Ram Sheldon Scott snared the rebound, it looked like curtains for Jeff.

However, Westmoor turned the ball over, and Jackson drove the length of the court for a jump shot to pull Jeff within one point, 61-60, with 0:07 left.

Westmoor attempted a full-court inbound pass, but Jackson knocked the ball out of bounds to set up Jefferson's stunning steal and basket.

"I wasn't real confident with five seconds left, but I told my players to keep pressing, to keep hustling — and it paid off," an exasperated Jeff Coach Bud Bresnahan said. "Robert was just the right guy at the right time and place."

"Boo Boo doesn't get much playing time, but he is a 100 percent team player, and I was glad to see it happen to him."

Westmoor shut down Jackson with only two points in the first half but could only manage a 31-30 advantage. Dupree and center Ken Mackey picked up the scoring slack for Jeff with nine and 11 points, respectively.

"Ken Baptista and Derrick Johnson did a good job on me in the first half," Jackson said. "I would take a step and spin on one, but the other one would be there. It kind of threw my rhythm off. But we were only down by one at half, so I knew we could come back in the second half."

Operating at the low post, Jackson was able to hit the boards and shoot more. The 6-3 senior tallied 16 points in the second half, including many crucial baskets.

"It's a tough way to lose," Westmoor Coach Tony Giammona said. "We made a couple of mistakes, but I told my players they have nothing to be ashamed of. But you have to give Jeff credit. They came back. The got the big break."

6 NPL Grapplers Win in Regionals

The North Peninsula League produced six individual champions — and the team champion in Oceana High — and the Mid-Peninsula League produced a pair of individual champs in Saturday's Central Coast Section Region I wrestling finals at Oceana.

Oceana won the team title with 105½ points, 16 more than De Anza League champ Sunnyvale scored. Mid-Peninsula League kingpin Crestmoor finished third in the team category with 70½ tallies.

The six individual champions from the NPL: Oceana's Bob Butler (98's), Terra Nova's Dave Loobey (136's), Oceana's John Osterlund (141's), Jefferson's Nolan Smith (148's), Jefferson's Charlie Banfield (178's) and Oceana heavyweight Jim McKeever.

The two champs from the MPL were Crestmoor's Cliff Gosse (115's) and San Mateo's Shig O'Hara (168's).

The MPL was at a disadvantage in that it was allowed to send only one wrestler, its division champion, in each weight division, whereas the NPL and DAL were each allowed to field three competitors in each class; that was because the NPL and DAL had more teams competing in their leagues than the MPL.

The top four wrestlers in each division qualified for the CCS finals, which are scheduled to be held Saturday at Independence High in San Jose, beginning at 9:30 a.m. The championship bouts are expected to begin at approximately 7 p.m. The top four in each class will qualify for the state finals, to be held the following weekend.

A total of 28 wrestlers from the two local leagues will be competing Saturday, 20 from the NPL and eight from the MPL.

Central Coast Section Region I Wrestling Finals: Team Scores — Oceana 105½, Sunnyvale 89½, Crestmoor 70½, Saratoga 58½, Cupertino 51½, Jefferson 49, Homestead 37, Terra Nova 34½, Lynbrook 33, Westmoor 24, South San Francisco 23, Monta Vista 23, San Mateo 22, Aragon 12, El Camino 10, Capuchino 9½, Fremont (Sunnyvale) 4, Half Moon Bay 0, Serramonte 0.

Fazio Sparks Trojan Win

PITTSBURGH — Darryl Fazio's bases-loaded double, in the eighth inning of a scheduled seven-inning baseball game, proved to be the difference in an 8-6 win for Skyline College over host Los Medanos Saturday in pre-season play. The Trojans had lost the first game of the doubleheader, 3-1.

Capuchino High grad Rich Anderson pitched well in the first game, but fell victim to a three-run, four-hit fifth inning. Los Medanos collected but two other hits in the game.

Skyline had to come from behind to take the second game. Bob Robe from Oceana High got three hits for the Trojans, including a game-tying home run in the sixth inning. Former Crestmoor player Scott Micheletti tripped and singled.

The Trojans will host Canada in a non-league contest Wednesday afternoon at 1.

When senior forward Patty Juergens went to the bench with about a minute left in the game, her face was wreathed in smiles.

This had been a tough season for the 5-11 cager, touted as one of the County's top forwards. She had suffered a knee injury that forced her out of all but a couple of league games.

But the infectious grin was a non-verbal announcement that Patty Juergens was back — she scored 14 points from inside to go with Becky Myers' 22 tallies from the outside to lead Terra Nova to 58-36 come-from-behind win over galling South San Francisco in the North Peninsula League girls' basketball playoff finals Friday night at Skyline.

Terra Nova advances to the Region I playoffs Tuesday night at 8 o'clock at Serramonte. The Tigers will face the winner of this afternoon's MPL title clash between Capuchino and Crestmoor.

Menlo and 'The Pit' Stop Skyline

By FRED BAER

They went through the ritual of closing down the Oakpit Saturday night in Atherton, and all the numbers were wrong for Skyline College.

Menlo College's 71-53 Coast Conference basketball victory was called the "best win we've ever had" by Oak Coach Bud Presley, and left several streaks intact.

It was Presley's 100th game in the pit — 97 of them victories. Only two of the losses were to a JC — both to Skyline — and the third to the Cal junior varsity. The Oaks won their last 27 games in a row at home over a three-year period. Menlo won its first 45 games in the Oakpit under Presley, and in eight seasons had a 47-2 Coast Conference homecourt mark.

What Saturday's Menlo victory didn't do, however, was knock Skyline out of first place. The Trojans are 8-2 with two games left.

Skyline hosts co-second place Hartnell Wednesday and visit fourth-place Monterey Peninsula on Saturday, both at 7:30 p.m. Menlo and Hartnell are both 7-3. The Oaks close on the road — at Monterey Peninsula Wednesday and Gavilan Saturday.

And if Menlo does finish second or third, there could be a Coast Conference playoff game at the Oakpit on Feb. 28. The round-robin champ goes directly to the state playoffs, while the next four teams conduct a Shaughnessy tournament for the league's second state berth.

But there will be no more regular-season games in the Pit. Progress on Menlo's new sports complex is nearing completion next door, and the old two-story band-box, built in 1929 for $16,140, must come down in a few months to make way for the final stage of the arena and swim complex.

Members of Menlo's current team have never tasted defeat in the Oakpit, as soph guard Pete Doherty out of Serra was quick to point out after making a career-high 11 assists for the Oaks.

"That was the biggest thing tonight," echoed forward Rick McHone of Doherty's sentiments. McHone tallied 11 points.

The contest was decided in the first nine minutes. Menlo raced to a 13-2 lead, forward Marvin Penner hitting the last six of those points. Skyline, which couldn't convert the inside shot to that point, finally scored on drives by center Brad Levesque and guard Nate Broussard, the latter a three-point play, to close within six.

But the Trojans never came any closer, and trailed 31-17 at the half — and by as many as 23 points during the final four minutes.

"I knew when we got up by ten and spread their zone we could win it," said Presley. "Our plan was to get up by six or eight and then run our regular zone offense — but not go into a delay."

"We got the ball in for easy muscle shots," noted Doherty.

The Oaks were in Presley's "High-Popeye" offense. "That's where the point guard moves out a bit and waits for them to come out," said McHone. "Yes, playing here is special," he added. "There is really a home-court advantage here. I was shooting around when Skyline came in and they looked just awed by the place."

Menlo dominated all the game stats, too. The Oaks shot 69 percent from the floor (24 of 38) to Skyline's 42 percent (21 of 50) and out-rebounded the taller Trojans 26-14 — led by Penner's nine grabs. Penner, a 6-5 frosh, tallied 26 points, hitting 11 of 13 from the field, and guard Kevin Flaig scored 19 — including 13 straight free throws. Levesque scored 14 for Skyline before fouling out with six minutes left.

Acting coach Don Lippi, subbing for the still-ailing Lyle Newcomer, didn't think the defeat would bother the Trojans this week. "I think we finished our meeting on a positive note."

Jeff's Jackson a Most Unique Athlete

Darryl Jackson, Jefferson High School's all-anything-and-then-some basketball player, is one of the most unique young athletes I've ever seen or met.

On the purely physical level, his accomplishments, as hinted at above, speak for themselves: All-NPL, All-County, Player of the Year, the NPL's leading scorer, All-American Mention, etc., etc. It's been suggested to Darryl that an accumulation of his press clippings and recruiting letters probably would form a large enough mass to gag Howard Cosell, and Darryl's considering the possibility, because Cosell — though Darryl has nothing personally against the man — is the antithesis of what Jackson stands for.

Darryl Jackson, in a word, is low key, and in this era of cry babies and/or loudmouth egos in the guise of athletes, that's refreshing and unique.

One best could describe Jackson's game as the City Game under control, as playground basketball done as team game. There is the flash, yes, but it's not manufactured. And it's so natural that the flash doesn't blind the spectator to the reality.

Jackson has moves to the basket I've never seen a high school kid make. They seem so natural they might appear to be purely instinctive. And while instinct certainly plays a part, hard work has been the most telling influence on Jackson's game.

If Darryl has a weakness, in fact, it is that he is so fluid he makes it look easy; that he is so natural many think he sometimes isn't hustling. Because of this he perhaps hasn't caught as many recruiters' eyes as have other more physically spectacular but basically less efficient players.

As his coach, Bud Bresnahan, so rightly comments, "To fully appreciate Darryl, you have to see him over a long stretch. One or two looks may not impress you that much."

Jackson does the little things, the subtle stuff. He plays both ends of the court (he'll sometimes force the man he's guarding into a turnover not because of anything he does overtly, but simply because of the fact that he's there with his quickness, his aggressiveness, his alertness), he doesn't turn the ball over, he'll set the opposition up now for something he plans on doing later.

Jackson is extremely competitive, much more so than his actions would indicate. Bresnahan occasionally has played little psychological games with Darryl. For example, might tell him he heard that the man guarding him is going to play to his left side (Jackson's natural southpaw) because he figures Darryl can't hurt him right-handed. Jackson then will promptly go out and coolly sink three or four baskets shooting with his right hand. He doesn't say much, he just does it. He'll mentally destroy the poor kid guarding him.

In a word, Darryl Jackson this year, had the rest of the league over-matched. There wasn't a player in the league who could go one-on-one with him. Sometimes they couldn't go two or three-on-one with him. In an earlier game against Oceana he brought his own bench to its feet (which isn't unusual when Darryl's operating) when he literally sent three players who were attempting to pressure him in the back court to the floor with two or three moves that had them groping mid-air.

Jackson is one of those guys who, athletically, could be anything he wants to be.

One year he went out for football, made the team as a wide receiver, played in three games, and caught three long touchdown passes. He quit, however, when he realized that his real future would be in basketball and decided to protect his knees.

Bresnahan, who used to be the varsity baseball coach at Terra Nova, believes Jackson could be an outstanding high school baseball pitcher. He's tried to talk Darryl into going out for the baseball team for the first time, but at the moment it looks like Darryl is interested only in sharpening up his basketball game after school this spring.

"The kid has a great arm," says Bresnahan. "The way he can rifle a basketball full-court, imagine what he could do with a baseball, at 60 feet, 6 inches."

But what I like best about Jackson are his human qualities; his genuine modesty (but make no mistake, he also has complete confidence, which is a tough combination), his naturalness, his good nature, his sense of humor, his sense of responsibility to his team.

Darryl's chief rival for the past two seasons has been Serramonte's great shooter, Ricky Mixon. Somebody was ribbing Jackson before the current season began that he had better not plan on winning the scoring title (which he secretly felt he would win), because Jefferson would be stronger than Serramonte, and as such, if the Regents were out of contention in late season and Jackson and Mixon were close in scoring (as they almost certainly would be), that Serramonte coach Rick Warne would give Mixon more opportunity to shoot so he could capture the scoring title.

Said Jackson seriously, and sincerely, "I don't really care if that happens, because then that means we'll be champions, and that's what I'm shooting for."

Another time he was being ribbed about what would happen if he and Mixon somehow ended up on the same college team. "You two would be fighting each other for the ball," somebody kidded.

"Not me," said Darryl. "I'd be the passer. I think it would be fun to be able to pass off to a great shooter like Ricky. Man, we'd light up the gyms."

He can be a very humorous kid at times. Last year, when he began filling out questionnaires for college recruiters, he invariably listed his height as 6 feet, 3 inches.

One day, Bresnahan, looking over Darryl's shoulder, said, "Come on, Darryl. Be honest. You're only 6-2."

"Yeh," said Jackson, in all sincerity, "but I figure that by the time I get recruited next year, I'll be 6-3."

With all of the notoriety, Jackson hasn't changed. Quite simply, he hasn't gotten the fat head. Around school, he just isn't treated like a star. He's one of the guys. And that's largely because of his attitude. He's friendly with everybody, including the inevitable snotty-nosed little freshman who spots him in the gym and challenges him to a one-on-one contest.

He takes ribbings about his talent, about his academic ability (actually, he's a good, average student, though no intellectual giant, who has stayed legitimately eligible for four years), about his girlfriends. An angry word is never released from his mouth. He loves the give and take because he has accomplished a difficult feat for a young athlete these days. He hasn't fallen in love with his talent.

Meanwhile, the colleges are courting him, most notably Gonzaga, Portland and Arkansas. He may be leaning toward the south a little at the moment, but he's still weighing everything.

Why USF isn't coming after him with a torch and bloodhounds, I'll never know. Darryl Jackson is exactly what that team needs — an unselfish point guard who understands that basketball is a team game.

But maybe that's too rich for USF's tastes.

The boys varsity tennis team has started work at Serramonte High School. The coach is Mr. McCormack, who teaches business at Serramonte. I wish all the team members the best of luck for a successful season.

Tennis team members are Ken Abdalla, Wayne Brown, Lance Chu, Kevin Covington, Tuan Dang, Genny Hom, Gina Hom, Ralph Hoppin, Gregory Keh, Danny Lewbin, Mike

Madriero, Franklin Matthias, Robin Moeller, Glenn Navor, Steve Navor, Manuel Rocamora, Eddie Salazar, Vicki Veloso, Ramon Villafra, Linda Wenzelburger, Alex Yee, and Matthew Young.

The track, boys baseball and girls softball teams also have started practice. Best of luck to these teams, too.

Are you interested in badminton? The girls badminton team will begin practice soon. Contact the coach, Mr. Harrieh, for more details.

Red Cross Advanced Swimming has started at Westmoor High's pool. The group meets every Tuesday and Thursday night for the next five weeks. You must be 15 years old. The fee is $15. For more information call 992-4190.

The career center at Serramonte has been moved to room 220 in the homemaker wing. The career center is open during lunch and contains many college catalogs, information and pamphlets on jobs, schools, the armed services and other things related to a student's future after high school. Be sure to go to the career center and look around, you might find something interesting.

The career center also periodically has guest visitors. For example, the U.S. Coast Guard, Air Force Reserve and representatives from San Francisco State University came recently and answered many questions from students. Check the daily bulletin for other dates for more guest speakers.

Serramonte's Executive Board will sponsor some exciting assemblies for the months of March and April.

On March 15 Eastman Kodak will present a program on photography. "The History of Animation" is the title of the Pepsi Cola assembly April 20.

Speaking of the Executive Board, a few conflicts have arisen on the subject of petitions. Clubs and classes must fill out a petition if they want to sell items or have an activity such as a dance, concession, etc.

The petitions are necessary because they give all clubs and classes an equal chance to make money, allow the Executive Board to see what the groups are selling so as to make sure the group is not competing with the cafeteria and other groups, and avoids conflicts between clubs and classes. These petitions and other rules are set up to give all groups an equal chance.

Last week I mentioned that a few of Serramonte's student leaders attended a conference at Skyline College. The conference was to evaluate common school problems and to discuss what could be done about them. Each school was asked to submit five positive things about their school and five negative things.

The positive aspects of Serramonte were listed as open campus, club of the year award, multi-ethnic day, assemblies, spirit week and fashion shows, among other things. Serramonte, like all schools, has negative things, too. Among these are vandalism and apathy, which I am sure are problems many schools have to deal with.

The Executive Board came back from this conference with new ideas on how to solve the negative problems and ways to improve other aspects of Serramonte. New ideas are to have more class meetings, more clubs getting involved in spirit at rallies, more contests and awards, computer dances, and more involvement with student congress.

These are only ideas, it is not certain as of now whether these will be acted upon. If you have any ideas be sure to tell any Executive Board member. Remember, your school can be only what you make it.

A Safeway service in support of suggestions from the U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs

INFLATION FIGHTING ideas

"Be an 'Eggs'pert"

When buying eggs, the U.S. Office of Consumer Affairs suggests that you should look at the price differential among small, medium, large, extra large and jumbo. According to the Office of Consumer Affairs, if the difference between one size and the next is seven cents or greater, the smaller size egg is the better buy.

The versatility of eggs, their popularity and their relatively low price makes them one of your most potent inflation fighting meal-makers. Hard-boiled, they're perfect in brown bag lunches or in the picnic hamper. Halved and deviled, eggs add flavor and interest to almost any meal.

The Indian

By LORRAINE WILSON, MICHELLE VELEZ, and LINDA LEE

Jefferson High School's student store known as "The Trading Post," opened last Friday, selling items such as Jefferson scarfs, hats, pencils, bumper stickers, pins, pom-poms and more.

Practices for two spring sports began last week — the track team, coached by Greg Alvarado, who came to Jeff from Westmoor, and the boys tennis team, which has been coached by Ed Johnson for several years.

Jeff's basketball team has been moving strong all season, and continued to prove its abilities against Oceana in the playoffs. Jeff led 35-32 at halftime and finished the game with an 88-66 win.

Also, Jefferson's super soccer team has played seven games and lost only one this season. They played San Mateo Saturday at Balboa Stadium, and a victory will mean that they will be playing in the C.C.S. Our most valuable players, Fred Proano and Jose Nula, had nine straight shutouts.

Jeff's JV soccer team has won two games, lost two and tied three. The JV's will not be going to the playoffs this year.

Students of the student government class at Jefferson are trying to form an alumni association. They will be contacting alumni during this semester and expect to have the association well under way by September. If you are interested in joining send your name, address and graduating year to Diane Cresci, director of student activities, Jefferson High School, 6996 Mission St., Daly City 94014.

The Booster Club has been led for several years by Lavina DeNatalie. Unfortunately, the club folded this year when Mrs. DeNatalie resigned as president to return to school. It was made up of parents who had children participating in Jeff's sports program. If you are interested in this club or have information that would be helpful, please contact Diane Cresci at Jefferson.

Candygrams were sponsored by the junior class for Valentine's Day. Heart suckers were delivered along with personal messages from sweethearts, secret admirers, or just friends.

Jeff's Student of the Month for February is Lorraine Wilson. A junior, Lorraine has contributed much of her time and effort in student government. Last semester she was a member of the Student Advisory Board, helping to improve the schools district-wide. She also was junior class president, holding many responsibilities such as 80's Homecoming float, candy sales, selection of the prom room, the candygram sale and planning for this semester's activities. Lorraine enjoys helping the track team when her time permits and her hobbies include skating and bowling.

Jeff's traditional Indian Princess Ball this year will be Feb. 23, featuring the band "New Genesis." As part of the Indian tradition, a nominee for princess is chosen to represent each club. The 1979 princess will be announced at the semi-formal dance and will receive a turquoise ring.

The seniors have been planning and sponsoring many activities this year and one show which was both amusing and entertaining was "The Dating Game." The game, Feb. 8, attracted a crowd in Jeff's Little Theater. Some of the participants came from other schools and at the end the three lucky couples were sent on their first date.

The seniors also are planning a snow trip for Feb. 24 to Leland Meadows.
